THE COMING FALL PARADES.

RENEWED ACTIVITY IN ARMORIES.

THE NEXT COLONEL OF THE 7TH REGIMENT—PREPARING FOR THE REGULAR DRILLS.

There is increased animation in the armories in view of the coming inspections and fall parades of the organizations of the National Guard. Drills will soon begin. Arms and accoutrements are being put into good condition, brasses and buttons are being heightened, vacuums among commissioned officers are being filled and recruits are joining and receiving their first lessons. The session will be one of great activity and it is believed that marked improvement will be speedily developed in every arm of the service. A fine military display is promised on the occasion of the review of the 1st and 2d Brigades in this city by the Governor in October. Both commands by that time will have worn off the rust of summer idleness and will be in a condition to show what they are good for.

To-morrow evening the new school of instruction for the officers of the 1st Brigade, established by General Fitzgerald, will be opened at the old armory of the 2d Battalion at Broadway and Forty-fifth street. It will be open every night in the week thereafter. Monday and Thursday evenings will be devoted to instruction, mounting and dismounting and the rules relating to the conduct of mounted officers. On Tuesday and Friday evenings there will be drills in sword exercise. On Wednesday evenings there will be recitations in lessons from the tactics and regulations, and Saturday evenings will be devoted to pistol practice. Apt pupils will prepare the way for promotion and those who are negligent and dull will be ordered before the State Board. Great improvement is likely to result from this experiment which the General has long had in contemplation.

It seems to be pretty well settled in the minds of the officers of the 7th Regiment that when Colonel Clark retires next year, after having been Colored for twenty-five years, he will be succeeded by Captain Daniel Appleton of Company F. The elements that go to make a good candidate for the position are so mixed up in him that the officers are ready to stand up and say he is the man they are looking for. He enlisted as a private in Company F on October 31, 1871; was made a Corporal on April 8, 1873; became a Sergeant on November 7, in the same year; was appointed First Sergeant on March 9, 1875; was elected Second Lieutenant on March 23, 1876; and became Captain on January 15, 1879, holding that position since then with great advantage to the company and credit to himself. He is a strict disciplinarian, a well-instructed officer, and a man of social position and means who can do his time to the welfare of the regiment.

Warren A. Hanson, Jr., A. M. Hall, Walter Hazen Clark and Clarence Hobart have been proposed as members of Company I, 7th Regiment. George E. Moore, formerly a sergeant in the company, will probably again join it.

Company H, 7th Regiment, has four men on the regimental team. Company G has four, Company F, three; Company C, two; Company K, one. The team is a strong one and has done excellent work at Creedmoor.

The Survivors' Association of the 27th and 33d Regiments, New York Volunteers, and 1st Regiment New York Veteran Cavalry will hold their annual reunion at Deposit, N. Y., on September 29 and 30. A grand reception is promised. On the first day there will be a business meeting at 1:30 p.m., and a banquet in the evening with toasts and speeches. On the second day there will be a parade at 10 a.m., followed by the dedication of a soldier's monument. General H. W. Stewert is president of the association and C. B. Fairchild secretary. The reception committee consists of C. J. Knapp, William L. Ford, G. D. Wheeler, A. Devereux, Dr. O. T. Bandy, Arthur More, E. P. Ward and J. W. Kinsella.

Captain Howland and Bell, of Company A, 12th Regiment, in orders announcing that the regular drill season will begin on Monday, October 1, at 8:15 p.m., says: "The Commandant trusts that every man will endeavor to be present and that the Roll of Honor of those who have made every drill during the year will be increased. There have been three additions to the rolls since the last drill season; Sergeant Edward R. Trantott, re-enlisted; Daniel M. McElroy enlisted; and Charles Thiederer reported for duty. The importance of recruiting must not be overlooked. Every man should make an effort to raise the company up to the number allowed by law. At the close of the drill season the officers will give suitable recruiting prizes."

Members of the 9th Regiment will practise at Creedmoor on Wednesday and Thursday of next week, and it is probable that on these days many more marksmen will qualify. It is probable that the 9th Regiment of Massachusetts will visit New-York as the guests of the 6th regiment this fall.

Captain Henry S. Steele, of Company E, 7th Regiment, who has served long and faithfully in that command, has two promising sons, whose names, it is said, will be proposed for membership at the meeting of the company to-morrow evening.

Captain J. A. H. Dressel, of Company F, 7th Regiment, at the request of many friends in the command, has withdrawn his resignation. The men of the company, which has improved greatly under his command, are greatly rejoiced at this.

The trouble between him and Lieutenant Golding, growing out of a disagreement during the Bull Run trip, caused the Captain's resignation, but for the good of the regiment it is hoped that the affair will be forgotten by both men.

Captain J. G. R. Lillard, of Company C, 22d Regiment, had a severe spell of sickness during the summer, but he has entirely recovered and is devoting himself to the interests of his company.

The 7th Regiment will have another general practice day at Creedmoor next Tuesday. The rifle team has been doing good work. A handsome ride has been presented by the Winchester Arms Company as a prize to be competed for.

Company B, 7th Regiment, known as the Harlem Company, will give several entertainments during the fall and winter. The first one will take place at West End Hall in Harlem on the evening of November 22 and promises to be a lively affair.

Company C, 7th Regiment, will elect a second Lieutenant next Wednesday evening in place of Lieutenant Young, sergeant J. W. Carter and Walter Sprague are candidates for the position and each has a strong following. Squad drill will soon begin in the various companies of the regiments.

The committee on the history of the 9th Regiment have issued a circular, in which they say:

The history of the 9th Regiment (83d N. Y. Vol., 1861-1864), from 1865 to 1888, is now ready for publication, and the time has arrived for subscriptions to enable the printing of the volume the coming fall or winter. The same will contain about 700 octavo pages, and will be the most complete regimental history ever published. The cost of publication has been estimated at $2,000, of which $400 has already been subscribed and expended in the preparation of manuscript, etc. The success of this long-delayed undertaking depends upon the exertions, members and friends of the regiment. You are requested, urgently, to contribute to this cause, and to encourage your friends and relatives to do the same for us.

To all such as contribute cash to assist in the publication, the understanding is that the amounts so contributed are to be retained in full on receipt of money from the sale of the book cover and above the cost, or if not enough to pay in full, pro rata, and the balance, if any, in a copy or copies within a year after the issuing of the work. The volume will have maps of the battle-fields, illustrations, etc., and be bound in fine cloth. The price has been fixed at $3.50; when delivered by mail (25 miles distant from New-York City), $3.80. All money to be sent to Captain James Stiles, treasurer, Broadway and Twenty-eighth street.

Boards for the examination of persons appointed to medical offices have been constituted by the Adjutant-General, upon the recommendation of the Surgeon General, as follows: For the First Brigade: Major Robert W. McKim, surgeon 1st Brigade, Major Daniel M. Stimson, surgeon 7th Regiment, Major Nelson H. Henry, surgeon 12th Regiment; for the Second Brigade: Major George H. Fowler, surgeon 2d Brigade, Major John E. Valentine, surgeon 2d Brigade; for the Third Brigade: Major Herman Benders, surgeon 3d Brigade, Major Lewis Balch, surgeon 10th Battalion, First Lieutenant Daniel S. Burr, assistant surgeon 20th Separate and Hospital Corps; for the Fourth Brigade: Major Robert Park, surgeon 4th Brigade, Major John C. Stockton, surgeon 7th Regiment, Major Albert H. Briggs, surgeon 6th Regiment.

It is directed that returns of appointments of medical officers be referred to the commanding officers of brigades, who are to make the necessary arrangements for their respective commands, and all enlisted men will be governed by the rules prescribed in orders by the Adjutant-General's office, as far as applicable. Appointments are to be made with due regard to the standard branches taught in the standard medical schools; the diagnosis and treatment of injuries and diseases to which troops are liable; the medical and surgical treatment of the sick and wounded, and for the transportation of the sick and wounded, including stretcher drill, camp and personal hygiene; and as to their knowledge and experience in the use of the medical instruments and official papers relating thereto.

The hospital stewards who are hospital stewards who are not qualified according to the laws of the State to perform the duties required of them, commanding officers are directed to discharge such men and to have them examined before the state or county boards of pharmacists, and have received licenses as pharmacists.

Colonel James Fairman, who commanded the 9th

Regiment New York Volunteers during the war, made a stirring address at a banner-raising in the Twelfth Assembly last week.

Company G, 7th Regiment, has vacancies for two non-commissioned officers, who wants a second Lieutenant and Corporal. It wants a second both companies. Elections will soon be ordered in both companies.

Private George Waite, of company D, 6th Regiment, who was so ill with pneumonia at the State camp, is greatly pleased with the careful attention paid him by the medical officers and others while there. He has entirely recovered.
